Regular Meeting Town Council

At the last council meeting the Bow Valley S.D. requested from the town the eight acres northwest of the school for the purpose of erecting a new school. However, after the inspection of the grounds it was thought that the ideal place to erect a new school would be on the present site facing 7th Ave. south. This will be discussed at the next board meeting of the Bow Valley School District.

A report is to be prepared for the next council meeting regarding starting of a peddling bylaw.

The secretary was instructed to look into the matter of the town as the authority to charge the upkeep of sewer lines out to the main sewer.

It was decided to ask the Board of Trade to organize a clean-up campaign.

The secretary is to see Councillor Jack MacArthur of the Bow Valley Municipal District and inform him the town will need 750 cubic yards of gravel for Crowfoot Street and lead line and ask him to arrange to have it available when needed.

All dog owners are to be advised that dog licenses must be procured before the 30th of May or they will be liable to a summons and subject to a fine of $5.

It was decided that the town will take out a $10,000-$20,000 public liability insurance.

The fire committee was instructed to purchase a new 2 h.p. fire siren for the town.

The Ottawa Letter

BY SENATOR GERSHAW

The subject of euthanasia has been widely discussed lately. "Freedom from pain in dying" is surely desirable and as Dr. I. M. Robinowitch explains that was the original meaning of the word. It implied that when all hope had gone that it was the duty of the physician to lessen the pangs and anguish of death. The word now has come to mean "bringing to death" which is very different. It seems that this was to some extent the practice among primitive people e.g. the Eskimos and the Bible records that Saul was killed at his own request although David ordered the execution of the Amalekite who did the deed.

In modern times there is a case where a husband at the request of his wife who was suffering from an incurable illness placed a cup of poison on a chair near her bed. He was convicted of first degree murder and on appeal the conviction was affirmed. In many other cases that seemed to be somewhat similar the verdict has been "not guilty." That only means that the prosecution had not proven them guilty. It did not mean innocence.

The religious law upholds the sanctity of life and any hastening of death is strictly forbidden. The Church seems to make exceptions for nations at war, execution of war criminals, and self defence, but has never sanctioned an ending of life for private expediency and to end human suffering.

Part of the oath that doctors take is as follows: "I will give no deadly poison to any one if asked nor suggest any such counsel."

If doctors were allowed to hasten death on humane grounds it would be justifiable for others to do the same. This view might be hard to defend but if doctors were allowed to end life when the disease was incurable and death inevitable it might be logically argued that if it was justifiable to terminate life because of pain it would be equally justifiable to terminate life before the pain begins.

It is, as Dr. Robinowitch points out, always possible that the diagnosis may not be correct.

It was not so long ago that when a doctor would be operating on an Indian other braves would be standing by with loaded rifles. If anything went wrong with the operation it was just too bad for the doctor. The King of Hungary in 580 had two doctors executed because they failed to cure his wife of the plague. Physicians were often punished for failures in days gone by. It was only when it was clearly established that their sole duty was to prolong life and to relieve pain that great progress in the healing art was made by new remedies being tried.

Even in this desperately hopeless case pain can now be largely mastered by surgery or by the recently discovered drugs. Medical science can do marvellous things but one thing it cannot do and that is to restore life once it has departed. As Shakespeare says:

"When I have plucked the rose I cannot give it vital growth again It needs must wither."

The traditions of medicine recognize the sacredness of human life and especially with the means now at hand there is no reason to modify the ethical standard.

Annual Sports Day Will Be Held Next Wednesday

Next Wednesday will be Empire Day and it is on that day Gleichen will stage its annual Sports Day as it has done for a great many years. There is always a good sized crowd present if the weather is favorable and there should be this year although seeding is a little behind.

The program of sports will consist of a baseball tournament between Arrowwood, Milo and Cluny. Gleichen will not be in this tournament owing to the fact it has no team. The high school will play baseball against the Gleichen Old Men headed by the veteran ball player Bob Brown.

The Gun Club will stage a trap shooting contest for those who care for that sport and good prizes will be offered.

There will be all kinds of sports for the school children with prizes offered for the winners.

In the evening a big dance will be held in the Community Hall and "Darkie" and his orchestra will supply the music for it.

Legion W.A. Meet

The regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Hall last Thursday evening, May 11. Much business was accomplished.

Miss D. Buck and Mrs. B. Evans were initiated. A letter was read from the Canadian Association of Nurses and after some discussion a cash donation was decided upon.

There were three applications for membership in the branch accepted. Mrs. E. Walker, Mrs. T. Collins and Miss. Cora Wallace.

A lunch tea will be held some time in June. Date is to be set at the next meeting which will be held on June 26.

Convenor of the tea is Mrs. E. Taylor and convenor of the bake table is Mrs. A. N. McLeay.

A doll will be raffled and Mrs. C. Hutton offered to look after the raffle tickets.

This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned.

After the march and a flower contest which was won by Mrs. G. Murdock, a delicious lunch was served and a pleasant hour was spent over coffee and tea cups.

EMPIRE DAY

Empire Day is but a holiday in current times but to those who can look back to other times it is a remembrance of Victoria the Good, Britain's sovereign during the years when the empire reached its height of glory.

Queen Victoria typified the 19th century and a period that has gone forever. Peaceful, happy Britain made tremendous progress during her reign and the realm of empire was extended all over the globe. A brilliant galaxy of statesmen served under the Good Queen. Among them were such notable men as Gladstone and Disraeli, great leaders.

"Who knew the season when to take Occasion by the hand and make The bonds of freedom wider yet. By shaping some august degree Which kept her throne unshaken still, Broad-based upon her people's will And compassed by inviolate sea."

Victoria by her wise and shrewd reign, her domesticity (which included the bringing into the world and training of a vast family) her simple virtues and her love of Britain endeared herself to the Empire, long will she be remembered and her reign looked back upon as the "golden days" of the British Empire.

Her court was pure, her life serene God gave her peace her land reposed. A thousand claims to reverence closed In her as mother, wife and queen.

The Canadians will sail on S. S. Volendam on June 26th, from Quebec City to Rotterdam from where they will sail again on September 5th to New York.

The Seminar is sponsored by the International Students Service (I.S.S.) in co-operation with the Canadian Council of Reconstruction through UNESCO.

At the close of the Seminar Miss Sutermeister will have three weeks at her own disposal during which time she expects to visit her relatives in Switzerland and also in the North of England before joining the student party again at Rotterdam.

Migration Miracle

BY GEORGE MURRAY

(This is the first of a series of articles written for the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association by the editor of the Pictou Advocate.)

New York—The sun came out this afternoon. That was big news. The Queen Elizabeth and other ships which had been standing off under a blanket of fog for hours began to move into the harbor. One of the ships was the United States Army Transport General J. H. McRae, and for the 1166 refugees aboard the sun had come out in more ways than one.

As these displaced persons disembarked their faces reflected hope for new homes and new opportunities in a land of the free.

Hundreds of relatives and friends crowded the pier to greet many of them, but there was a warm welcome for all the new comers as they were met by representatives of the National Catholic Welfare Committee, American Joint Distribution Committee, Hebrew Immigration Aid Society Church World Services, National Lutheran Committee, United States New Americans and other organizations. The representatives, distinguished by arm bands, would escort them to their sponsors in various parts of the United States.

But this was the happy ending of only one chapter in the story of the International Refugee Organization, largest of the specialized agencies of United Nations, commonly known as IRO.

Operating a fleet of 36 ships, using chartered planes and special trains, IRO is directing the greatest peacetime migration in the history of humanity.

Of the more than 8,000,000 displaced persons—Hitler's scrap heap of slave labor and radical and religious persecution approximately 6,500,000 have returned to familiar surroundings to pick up their war-shattered lives. The remaining 1,500,000 were persons who now on the other side of the "iron curtain" decided not to return to their respective homelands.

During the past two and a half years, since the Preparatory Commission of IRO took over the job of looking after refugees about 950,000 have been aided by the IRO care and maintenance program, mainly in the DP camps. Of these, more than 750,000 have been resettled. The total refugees assisted by IRO since July 1, 1947, is approximately 1,500,000.

In order to understand this problem, let us first ask ourselves "What is a DP, and how did the DP problem arise?"

During the nightmare years of the second world war the population of towns and villages, cities and even provinces were torn from their homes and scattered. Some fled before the advancing Red army and soviet system, while others were swept away by the brown tide of the Nazi flood to serve the German war machine as slave laborers. In other words, they were "displaced" from their homelands and became known as displaced persons or DPs for short, not to be confused with the German refugees who also streamed into the Western Zones of Germany in their thousands from East Prussia, Silesia, and Germany's other eastern provinces.

In concentration camps and slave labor camps amid the ruins of Hitler's Third Reich, in Austria and Italy, 8,000,000 DPs were found by the Allied armies. The problem was (Continued on last page.)

Top management

Here is a typical bank manager—43, married, with a growing family. He is active in community affairs. When he joined the bank as a junior, he was 17, just out of high school. He soon moved up. By his late twenties he was accountant in his branch.

He worked hard. All the time he was learning about banking, about Canada, too, in various branches, different areas... learning to know people—their hopes, fears, problems—the importance of the human factor.

At 36 he was branch manager. Now he has another, larger branch. And his way to advancement is still open. His general manager started as a junior, too... and carried with him to the top the business experience and human understanding gained along the way.

Canadian Emigration

FROM TIME TO TIME concern has been expressed regarding the number of people who leave Canada each year to take up permanent residence in the United States. Figures on emigration were given in a publication which was prepared by the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, and tabled recently in the House of Commons. Based on records of the United States Immigration department and on figures taken from the British Board of Trade Journal, it was shown that approximately 158,000 people have left Canada since 1945, and that the greater part of them have gone to the United States. Some were immigrants from other countries who had come first to Canada and later decided to move to the States. Others were Americans returning to their own country after having lived here, and there were a small number of deportees each year.

Some Return To Canada

However, there were also many Canadians who have been trained and educated in this country, some in highly specialized trades or professions. It is recognized that in some fields of endeavour there are wider opportunities and greater financial inducements in the United States than there are here, and it is considered inevitable that we should lose talented and able citizens to that country. While it is true that many Canadians are attracted to the larger and wealthier nation, some return to Canada in later years. It has also been shown that the loss to Canada is somewhat offset by the fact that there are Americans of outstanding ability who have become Canadian citizens and have had successful careers here.

Is Cause Of Some Concern

There is immigration of Americans to this country each year, but the numbers coming in are considerably less than the number of Canadians who move to the United States. As an example, in the year 1947 there were 29,059 people who moved from Canada to the United States, while only 10,801 Americans took up residence in Canada. The balance between the numbers leaving Canada and those coming in has been the cause of some concern here. Since the war, 379,199 immigrants have come to Canada from other countries, but taking into account the 158,000 who have left in the same period, the ratio of those leaving the country was five to every twelve who entered, or nearly one departure for every two arrivals. The period since the war has been one of re-adjustments, and events taking place in that time might not be indicative of a permanent trend. However, it is well for the Canadian people to be aware of the situation, in view of the importance of immigration to the future development of this country.

Future Warning

'Twas a week before seeding when all through the field, The hoppers were scheming to cut down the yield, The plans they were laid with great-est of care, So destruction would flourish, 'till whole fields were bare, Not a stem would they leave, not even a leaf, They would cause the poor farmer much headache and grief, So they grew in a hurry and then came the day, When they stretched their big wings and flew swiftly away To the heavens they rose in the still August heat, Then like a bad hailstorm swooped down on the wheat, There were brothers and sisters and uncles and cousins, Brown ones and green ones by the millions of dozens, They were greedy and hungry from evening 'till morn, They devoured the wheat, barley, oats and corn Then they flew to the garden and made such a scene, They ate all the onions and the golden wax beans, They lit on the rhubarb and chewed all they could, Then swarmed to the house and gnawed on the wood, They sneaked through the window and flew in the door, They crept on the ceiling and crawled on the floor, Where the farmer was eating in his everyday clothes, They came and they ate right under his nose, They nibbled his butter and chewed on his bread, They jumped from the table right on to his head, And then in farewell they buzzed in his ear, If you don't take "Precautions" we'll see you next year.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Two things that take the pleasure out of pleasure motoring, says a commercial publication, are the speed merchant tearing down the road and the contractor tearing up the road.

Host (showing guest to haunted room): "If you hear any noises in the night, old man, it's probably only the rats. At least we always try to think so!"

"Mary, did anybody telephone while I was out?"
"Yes, sir, but I couldn't make out the name. To be on the safe side I said you would let him have something on account tomorrow."

Man in swimming: "Are you quite sure there are no crocodiles about here?"
Man on shore: "Yes, sah. De sharks done scare 'em away, sah."

Said the prospective buyer: "He's a good-looking horse. Is he a good jumper?"
"Sir," replied the dealer, "if you want to keep him in a field you'll have to put a lid on it."

Bride: "I think we should open a new bank account."
Hubby: "Why?"
Bride: "Our old one doesn't have any more money in it."

Jones: "Life is full of trials."
Brown: "Yes, thank goodness."
Jones: "Why do you say that?"
Brown: "I'm a lawyer."

Prison Visitor: "So you're here for seven years. What's the charge?"
Convict: "There ain't no charge. Everything's free, 'ere."

When the talkative lady visitor left, Mr. Brown said to his wife: "That woman spoke so much that you couldn't get a word in edgewise."

"A word—" snorted Mrs. Brown, "—a word! I couldn't get a syllable in edgewise. I couldn't even say 'uh!'"

Manitoba Experiencing A Rapid Industrial Growth

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WINNIPEG.—The face of Manitoba is changing. An agricultural province is getting manufacturing industries. Industrial expansion has been faster in the last 10 years than at any time in the province's history. The department of industry and commerce, in a review of its work last year, lists some rather amazing figures of Manitoba's industrial growth.

For instance, the value of manufactured goods produced in 1949 was about $483,000,000, almost one-tenth more than the year before and more than double the figure for 1941.

The number employed in manufacturing was about 42,500, slightly up from 1948 but more than one-third above the number in 1941.

Payrolls last year totalled $87,000,000 about one-tenth higher than in 1948 and more than double the figure for 1941.

The province now has about 1,600 manufacturing plants. During 1949 almost 50 new industries were set up. One-third of them went outside Winnipeg, in small towns which used to rely almost wholly on agriculture.

The department says more than $21,500,000 of private capital was invested last year in new and expanded manufacturing facilities in Manitoba — more than two-fifths of all such money spent in the three prairie provinces.

What is the reason for the interest being shown in the province as a site for factories? The department lists several.

One is the growth in population in western Canada generally. Another, the department says, is the increase in freight rates. This makes it profitable for firms to operate closer to their selling-place instead of shipping finished goods from eastern Canada.

A third is the increasing supply of labor—especially skilled workers—in Winnipeg and Manitoba generally.

The department says it expects "a continuing high level of industrial and business activity in 1950."

An average percentage of 2.02 of the population is sick all the time.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Guns She Collected :: "The World Is Going To The Dogs."

By GENE HUNT

GEORGE met the lady in a pawnshop. She entered it just as he was leaving. He noticed immediately that she was almost pretty enough to be beautiful. And she might even be intelligent. He heard her tell the pawnbroker that she wanted to buy a gun. George was surprised. He strolled back to the counter, leaned on it, and waited.

"Of course," the pawnbroker was saying. He glared at George. George smiled winningly. "Of course. Do you have a permit from the police?"

The girl shook her head. "No. You see, the gun I want is a collector's piece. A navy Colt revolver, made in 1861."

The pawnbroker went back to look. There was a short silence, during which George looked carefully at the girl and the girl looked carefully away from George.

Finally George said, "Don't tell me you collect guns."

The lady glanced coldly at him. Finally she said, "Yes."

George shook his head dismally. "A female gun-collector! The world is going to the dogs."

"And just what," the lady asked, "is the matter with a woman collecting guns?"

"Well," George began, "it certainly isn't a very feminine hobby."

"Nonsense."

"And it's also downright dangerous."

"How, may I ask?"

"Women and guns just don't mix," George said. "Why, honey, I'd rather toss a lighted match into a gasoline tank than give a girl a loaded gun."

"Why don't you?" the girl asked sweetly.

"Why don't I what?"

"Why don't you throw a lighted match into . . ."

The pawnbroker came back, carrying two old percussion revolvers. The girl studied them carefully. Out of the corner of her eye, she could see George wince slightly each time she picked one up. Finally, she told the pawnbroker that neither of them were quite what she was looking for. She asked him to call her if he should find the one she wanted. She gave him her name, Miss Evelyn Marshall, and her address.

George and Miss Marshall left the shop together.

"Look," George said. "Look, I've got an idea."

She walked faster.

"Will you listen?"

Evelyn climbed into her car and slammed the door. "You don't want to have anything to do with me," she said sarcastically. "I might suddenly pull out my little blunderbuss and blow you full of holes." The car made an ugly noise as she put it into gear.

George had no difficulty remembering the address or, that evening, finding her home. Persuading her to let him in was a little harder. He did it by pushing a package into her hands, saying it was a peace offering.

While Evelyn examined George's peace offering, George examined Evelyn's apartment. Pleasant, he decided. Warm and comfortable. A good place to call home.

"It's beautiful," he heard Evelyn saying delightedly. "Where in the world did you find it?"

George looked at the big saddle pistol she was holding. He tried hard to think of something beautiful about it. "A friend gave it to me. As a souvenir of something. I've forgotten what."

"Oh," Evelyn said. "Oh, well, I can't take it from you. It's very kind of you, but . . ."

George just shook his head. "I don't want the thing."

Evelyn put down the gun carefully. She asked George to sit down. They talked. Evelyn told George about her home town and her family. She said she was now a commercial artist. George told Evelyn about going fishing as a boy and about the army. He said he was a mechanical engineer.

Evelyn asked, "Do you like it? Being an engineer?"

"Sure," George said. "It's interesting work and pays a good salary."

"Then why the pawn shop?"

"Oh, that," George grinned. "That was because of a poker game."

"A what?"

"Poker game. I lost more money than I expected. I needed something for cigarettes and stuff, so I pawned an old watch. I was there to redeem it."

"You pawned your watch!" Evelyn sounded horrified. "Why, I simply can't believe it."

"It seemed like a good idea at the time."

"What about your savings? Don't you budget?"

"Don't I what?"

"Horseshoe Dam" At Bassano

The famous "Horseshoe Dam" at Bassano, over 40 miles from Brooks, Alta., is the "backbone" of the Eastern Irrigation District. Here water is diverted from the Bow River and through the tremendous canal system to the rich crop lands of the district. The dam, second largest of its kind in the world, is of tubular construction, designed to stand practically to eternity. Tourists find this mammoth structure a photographic wonder. There is good fishing in the Bow, both above and below the dam.

the temptation to gamble, you'll have an emergency fund to cover your debts. Then you won't have to . . .

"Look, it isn't a question of resisting temptation. I play poker because I like to play poker," George's voice had a slight edge.

"It's a stupid extravagance. Who knows what it might lead to? It's downright dangerous."

George drew a deep breath. "Look, if I can afford to . . ."

Evelyn interrupted. "It's practically immoral." She regarded him coldly.

George sighed and reached for his hat. "O.K.," he said. "It's been nice." As he reached the door, he heard Evelyn laugh. He turned around. She put something in his hand.

"A peace offering," she said.

It was an unopened deck of cards. "I felt so stupid," Evelyn was saying. "I got perfectly furious at you and I was blocks away before I realized you hadn't meant anything you said. So I had to see if you'd realize that I didn't mean it when I said all those things about—" She stopped. "I was only fooling," she finished lamely.

When George finally understood, he was so relieved he kissed her.

"This," he said, "could be the beginning of a lasting friendship."

HERE AND THERE

Saturday morning the first real dust storm of the season struck the town and district. It darkened the sky so much that many places of business found it necessary to turn on the lights. The wind died down after dinner and the ladies spent a good part of the afternoon cleaning up their homes.

R. H. Riddell of Edmonton, motor-ed to Gleichen last week to visit his daughter Lexi who has been staying with her grandparents for some time. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Riddell of Calgary accompanied him.

Five members of the Gleichen Masonic Lodge accompanied Gordon Larsen on a visit to Champion lodge last Thursday night. They report having had a wonderful time especially in seeing Gordon taking the final step.

The wind and dust storm did not stop the United Church W. A. from holding their Mother's Day tea. There was a good turn out and the ladies feel it was well worth their effort. They realized over $80.00.

MIGRATION MIRACLE

Immense. These people had to be fed, clothed, housed, provided with medical care, administration, and legal protection, and all this was done in the early days by Allied armies, and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration financed by the United Nations. The emphasis is those days was on repatriation and while they waited their turn the people continued to live in the old concentration camps, slave labor camps, army barracks and even in private houses, groups of which were formed into assembly centres.

For the most part they were only too keen to get home, especially those people from the western European countries, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Italy. Others, though by no means all, from Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece and western Poland, had no qualms about returning. They had never experienced a soviet occupation and clamored for the home country.

By train, truck and even by foot they went. The highways were congested with masses of DPs straggling homewards. At the end of December 1945 the number repatriated stood at 5,500,000 but the rate was slowing down. It was already apparent that some had no desire to return under conditions prevailing in their homelands.

Why would these persons not return? That is what Allied and UN RRA officials were asking themselves with the advent of 1946.

For an answer, let us consider the Balts, citizens of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, and delve a little into their background story.

Lying midway between East and West, these Baltic states have had a turbulent history. From the earliest times the have resisted the German "drive to the east" and have acted as Europe's shield against Russia. For a hundred years before they gained their independence they chafed uneasily at the chains which bound them to Tzarist Russia. Then came the bolshevik revolution in October 1917 and the proclamation that the will of the people must decide the future of states, even to the point of separation from Russia. That offered the Balts the opportunity of realizing their long-cherished dream of freedom. It was not before

That proclaimed freedom had been deeded by force of arms and their determination had been sorely tested that independence did indeed become a fact. All three states achieved in 20-odd years a high standard of living and culture, comparable with only the most progressive of European countries, and proved themselves fit for freedom.

How many people to the gallon?

Many thousands of Canadians have a part in making a gallon of Esso available for their car.

About 12,000 of them are employed by Imperial. Some search for new oil fields; some move oil from producing fields to refineries where others make it into Esso and hundreds of other useful products; still others see to it that these are on hand wherever you want them.

Then there are almost 10,000 independent business men who, as Imperial dealers, supply you with our products.

And there are the many thousands of people who derive part of their livelihood from making and transporting the things that Imperial uses in its operations. Last year we bought equipment and supplies from more than 3,000 Canadian firms.

But those are not all.

About 70,000 Canadian residents are shareholders in Imperial or owners of Imperial bonds.

And there are more thousands who have an investment in Imperial through their bank deposits or their insurance policies, because a number of Canada's banks and insurance companies have put some of their clients' money to work to help us do our job.

Finding oil and bringing it to you in the kind of products you need is a big job, a job that requires the skills and the savings of many thousands of Canadians.

Bringing you oil is a big job... and a costly one
